INDEPENDENCE HOME CARE

Congratulations to Independence Health Services and its family of caregivers for being recognized by Rhode Island Monthly as one of Rhode Island's finest home health care agencies.

Our dedicated health care professionals provide culturally and linguistically appropriate services to our diverse clients, which includes care delivered to patients in a language they understand and care that is sensitive to their cultural, religious and other individual preferences.

The agency was founded seventeen years ago by Marc Harrison, a Cambodian refugee and survivor of the Cambodian Genocide of the 1970s; Colin Hanrahan a U.S. Army veteran of the first Gulf War, and Joan Hanrahan a former associate director of nursing at Rhode Island Hospital.

The agency was started to address the need of the health care emergency affecting the Southeast Asian refugee population in Rhode Island. We have been successful and have expanded our reach to other refugee populations that are in need of home care services.

Our family of caregivers can help you and give your loved one the care they deserve.
